

EMPOWERING PEOPLE

Turning the Page

I love a good book, don't you? A well-told story keeps us invested and eager to discover what comes next.

Our story has been a page-turner, made possible by your generous support. We would not be where we are today without you. There have been plenty of twists and turns, setbacks and triumphs. From nearly shutting down in 2002 to the success of our Coming Home Campaign, two things have remained constant: the goodness of God and support from people like you.

There is something bittersweet about turning the page. This year, we said goodbye to 323 4th Street South, our home for more than 20 years. Our mission services have been at their new location for nearly a year, while recovery programming and administration are now at 1254 3rd Avenue South.

The next chapter brings even more excitement. Renovations are underway at the Exodus Men's Recovery Home, expanding from 16 to 31 beds while bringing all our men's recovery housing under the same roof. This will improve the property, ease staffing pressures, and create more space for men pursuing recovery.

You are the heart of our story. Through your prayers, time, financial gifts, and donated goods, you make Streets Alive Mission's next chapter possible.

A Story from Recovery: Exodus Men Helping a Local Farm

Thanks to your support, Recovery Road is helping men in recovery rebuild their lives through hands-on work in the community.

This summer, residents from our Exodus Men's Recovery Program helped Pheasant Valley Ranch, an asparagus farm near Diamond City, tackle overwhelming weeds after heavy rains and equipment issues. Farmer Michelle Logue shared that the men "worked so hard" and "showed up with great attitudes."

The work was physically demanding, with weeds over five feet tall, but the men approached it with determination. For many of the men involved, it was the first meaningful work experience in years. Opportunities like this build work and life skills — confidence, teamwork, time management — while also supporting a local farm.

Your generosity makes stories like this possible. Thank you!
